All the Birds of the Air

is the flighty title chosen by Fever Pitch for their attractive programme of songs and readings on the theme of birds, ranging from madrigals and favourite songs by Sullivan and Stanford to that famous 'blackbird singing in the dead of night'. We are hoping of course that the weather will be fine, but if not the performance and refreshments will be in the house. Do bring suitable clothing as it may get a little chilly (but very romantic) as the sun starts to set.

We are most grateful to a generous supporter for once again making her house and garden available for this special evening. Entrance is by ticket only, and you will be given the address and directions when your booking is confirmed.

To book by post please use the form opposite. Or if you prefer you can book by sending an email with your request for tickets to: events@prisonerseducation.org.uk, and make payment by bank transfer to the following account, making sure that you use the reference

TRANSFORMING LIVES

Prisoners' Education Trust (PET) is the UK's leading prison education charity, providing distance learning courses and related advice and guidance for people in prison throughout England and Wales. Over the last 30 years since our foundation in 1989, we have funded over 40,000 courses. In 2018 alone we enabled over 2,400 prisoners to develop their knowledge, equipping them with skills and qualifications to build brighter futures. The provision of this kind of education in prisons has been proven by the Ministry of Justice to reduce reoffending by over 25%. With your support we can give more prisoners the chance to change their lives, and benefit our whole community.
